Data Science for Good!

Digital Transformation describes a staggering task for our society and access to relevant knowledge is limited. The increasing demand for technical and methodological expertise in combination with domain knowledge significantly impacts the European job market. In this vein, a new job description as well as a new string of education emerged: Data Science.

The Importance

Project EPSILON addresses the needs of both European Data for Good initiatives and HE institutions. Together with a leading European initiative, Data Science for Social Good Portugal, we will design tailored workflows and tools for European initiatives. We will set up a European Knowledge Platform and initiate a new Data for Good initiative in Lithuania. The gained experience and knowledge will be transformed into target group specific learning material for higher education students, teachers and alumni.

TPM in Lithuania

On May 14-15, 2024 EPSILON Project had a very successful TPM in Lithuania.

Meeting Highlights:
- Engaged in insightful presentations and discussions on European Data for Good initiatives.
- Explored best practices and new use cases.
- Took a tour of the stunning Kaunas Campus & Library.
- Delved into the current status of our Knowledge Platform and Business Intelligence Toolkit.
- Planned our next steps for Teaching & Training Materials, Dissemination, and the Project Website.
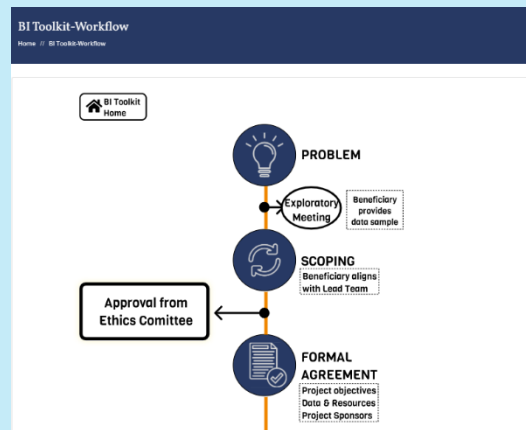

It was an inspiring event filled with productive discussions

BI Toolkit

The BI Toolkit has been finalized in the platform of the EPSILON project.

The BI Toolkit is finally here! We're thrilled to share this powerful resource designed to empower those in the data science for good community. Whether you're tackling complex data projects or striving to create positive impact, this toolkit has you covered. Looking forward to people using it and giving us valuable feedback!

TPM in Germany

On October 21-22, we gathered in Wernigerode for a productive Transnational Project Meeting, graciously hosted by Harz University on their beautiful campus. This event marked a significant milestone as we finalized the finishing touches to bring our vision to life!

We're thrilled to share that we're nearing the completion of an innovative platform packed with powerful tools for every stage of a data science project. Alongside our partners, we've created resources designed to support and inspire data-driven solutions for social impact.
